Sue Pope
Education Consultant

I have been actively involved in the field of heritage learning for almost 20 years managing various education services for small and medium sized museums including Avoncroft Museum of Historic Buildings and currently for Museums have undertaken several freelance commissions to develop similar resources for organisations such as Birmingham Conservation Trust - Newman Brothers Coffin Works Project. I have been a GEM (group for education in museums) convenor for 14 years and have recently been appointed to the role of GEM Trustee.

I am also a music teacher and historic musician, specialising in medieval, Tudor, Civil War and Victorian eras.

I am passionate and enthusiastic about heritage, historic buildings and learning and am truly thrilled to have been appointed by WMHBT to be part of this exciting project: www.merrienoyse.com.
